Excerpt from Crowds a Moving-Picture of Democracy, Vol. 1 of 5 The best picture I know of my religion is Ludgate Hill as one sees it going down the foot of Fleet Street. It would seem to many perhaps like a rather strange half-heathen altar, but it has in it the three things with which I worship most my Maker in this present - world the three things which it would be the breath of religion to me to offer to a God together - Cathedrals, Crowds, and Machines. With the railway bridge reaching over, all the little still locomotives in the din whispering across the street; with the wide black crowd streaming up and streaming down, and the big, far-away, other-worldly church above, I am strangely glad. It is like having a picture of ones whole world taken up deftly, and done in miniature and hung up for one against the sky - the white steam which is the breath of modern life, the vast hurrying of our feet, and that Great Finger pointing toward heaven day and night for us all. I never tire of walking out a moment from my nook in Clifford's Inn and stealing a glimpse and coming back to my fireplace. I sit still a moment before going to work and look in the flames and think. The great roar outside the Court gathers it all up - that huge, boundless, tiny, summed-up world out there; flings it faintly against my quiet windows while I sit and think.
